The SIX FUNDAMENTAL BELIEFS OF CHRISTANITY

The six fundamental beliefs of Christianity, often referred to as the six basic or chief doctrines, are foundational teachings that form the spiritual understructure for every Christian. According to the Bible (Hebrews 6:1-2), these six doctrines are:

1. Repentance from acts that lead to death.
2. Faith in God.
3. Instructions about baptisms.
4. The laying on of hands.
5. The resurrection of the dead.
6. Eternal judgment.

These doctrines are considered essential for establishing a solid Christian faith, protecting believers from false teachings, and promoting spiritual maturity.[1]

In addition, common fundamental Christian beliefs often include the nature of God as one being in three persons (the Trinity), the deity and resurrection of Jesus Christ, salvation through Jesus alone, and the authority of the Bible. Different Christian traditions may elaborate further, but these six foundational beliefs are widely acknowledged as the starting point for Christian doctrine.[2][3][1]

SHE V'R'G'N BIRTH OF JESUS CHRIST

Shevirat HaKelim, or "The Breaking of the Vessels," is a concept from Lurianic Kabbalah in Jewish mysticism that describes a primordial cosmic event where vessels created to contain divine light shattered because they were too fragile. This shattering scattered divine sparks throughout creation, resulting in a broken and imperfect world in need of restoration (Tikkun).

In Mormon Kabbalah interpretation, this breaking correlates to the Fall of mankind and explains why the world feels broken and how humans are called to participate in healing and restoring unity through divine light, often linked to Christ's atonement. The concept reflects on spiritual brokenness and the process of purification and healing that aligns with Christian theology on the Fall and redemption.

Regarding the birth of Jesus Christ, Shevirat HaKelim is not a direct biblical narrative but a mystical framework to understand creation, the Fall, and salvation. The birth of Jesus is seen in Christianity as the fulfillment of restoring divine connection and undoing the effects of the Fall, bringing light and redemption into a fractured world.[11][12]

Who do the MORMONS BELIEVE CHRISTJESUS MARRIED?

Mormons (members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints) do not have an official doctrine stating that Jesus Christ was married. The Bible is silent on the marital status of Jesus, and there has been no modern revelation from the LDS Church affirming whether Jesus was married or not. The issue remains open, and members are free to believe as they wish on this matter.

Historically, some LDS leaders and early Mormon teachings speculated or hypothesized that Jesus might have been married, possibly to Mary Magdalene or others, linking this idea to the broader Mormon emphasis on eternal marriage and exaltation. However, contemporary official LDS Church statements clarify that there is no official position or doctrinal teaching on Jesus' marriage.

In LDS theology, eternal marriage (celestial marriage) is essential for exaltation, and faithful Mormons believe that marriages sealed in the temple continue beyond death. This teaching does not specifically address Jesus' marital status but emphasizes marriage as a divine, eternal covenant for exaltation.
